“We appraise the value of every company in a way that reflects its private market value in a sale today.”

Chris Mittleman, CIO and Managing Partner, Mittleman Investment Management

The Mittleman Global Value Equity Fund invests in a concentrated portfolio of long-term investments across the globe. Unconstrained by capitalisation, sector or geography the fund invests wherever the best risk/reward trade-offs are available.

A concentrated global value equity strategy

Chris Mittleman, Mittleman Investment Management’s (“MIM”) Chief Investment Officer, has used the same strategy since the early 1990s to invest in global sharemarkets.

Mittleman’s positioning is often at odds with consensus viewpoints, especially during periods of irrational and emotional extremes. MIM’s client base spans university endowments, foundations, pension plans, family offices and high net worth individuals.

Mittleman’s investment edge

Mittleman pursues superior returns through a concentrated portfolio of what it believes are extremely undervalued assets.

The firm mitigates risk, defined as the probability of long-term loss of capital, by investing in businesses that they view as proven franchises, with durable economic advantages and by buying at very low valuations. It has minimal interest in benchmarks or tracking error versus an index.

The selection process is research-intensive, relying on proprietary fundamental analysis for all investment decisions and intrinsic value determinations. The firm capitalises on opportunities created by the short-term focus of many market participants and by the limitations of ‘street research’.

Mittleman invests in companies that share key characteristics:

- Undervalued businesses with high barriers to entry and strong free cash flow enduring through complete business cycles;
- Potential to achieve a fair or premium valuation due to market recognition of a unique franchise, scarcity value, misunderstood assets or reorganisation;
- Easy-to-understand businesses, led by strong management teams with a proven track record and a significant personal financial stake in the company; and
- Some impermanent reason for undervaluation and lack of institutional support.

“Sometimes the difference between success and failure was not just about our understanding and steadfast belief in the value of a holding, but how long we were willing to wait to achieve that result.” Chris Mittleman

Investment process

Once a potential opportunity has been identified, Mittleman establishes a conservative estimate of fair value through analysis of discounted cash flows, comparable public and/or private transactions, performance metrics over extended periods of time and other assets and liabilities. Each company's extended history of financial performance is analysed to enable reasonably robust projections of likely performance over the next 5 to 10 years.

The firm employs an acquisition strategy rooted in patience, investing only when the target company is available for purchase at a significant discount to Mittleman's assessment of its fair value. Position size is based on estimated total return potential, the perceived risk-reward ratio and liquidity.

Mittleman typically exits positions when an investment reaches or exceeds estimated fair value, if there is a deterioration in the firm's fundamental outlook, or if a superior investment opportunity is found.

Important Notes

The use of the MSCI ACWI herein has not been selected to represent an appropriate benchmark with which to compare against an investor's performance in the Mittleman Global Value Equity Fund (MGVEF), but rather it has been provided to allow for comparison of such performance to that of a certain well-known and widely recognised broad-market index. The MSCI ACWI is an unmanaged index compiled by MSCI. The index is weighted by market capitalisation and its returns include the reinvestment of dividends. The index does not account for transaction costs or other expenses which an investor might incur in attempting to obtain such returns. The index was taken from published sources and deemed reliable. You cannot invest directly in an index. Investments made by Mittleman Investment Management, LLC ("MIM") for its clients' portfolios including MGVEF differ significantly in comparison to this (and any other) index in terms of security holdings, industry weightings, and asset allocations. Accordingly, investment results and volatility will differ from those of the benchmark.

The MIM Composite includes all fully discretionary separately managed accounts which follow the firm's investment strategy and for which performance is measured using the U.S. Dollar as the currency, including those accounts no longer with the firm. MIM's value-oriented strategy is to invest in a concentrated portfolio (usually holding between 10 to 20 securities) of primarily common stocks, unrestricted as to market capitalisation, of both domestic and international companies. Performance presented prior to January 2006 occurred while the Portfolio Manager was affiliated with a prior firm and the Portfolio Manager was the only individual responsible for selecting the securities to buy and sell.
